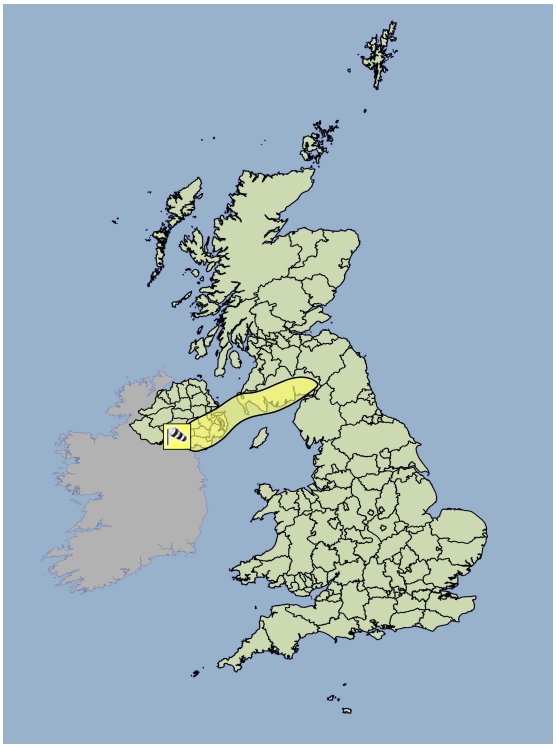
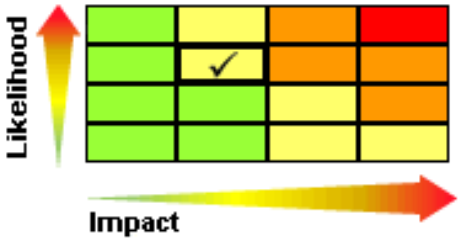
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
An area of low pressure will track northeast across the north of Northern Ireland this morning, with gale to severe gale force winds on the south and eastern flank bringing gusts of 60 to 65 mph particularly around exposed coasts.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Wind

Valid from 10:00 on Wed, 30th Dec 2015 until 14:00 on Wed, 30th Dec 2015

Gales or severe gales will develop across eastern areas of Northern Ireland and the southwest of Scotland during the late morning and early afternoon today, particularly around the coast and over high ground, before moderating from the west around mid-afternoon. In the wake of the heavy rainfall this will further complicate the recovery action across these areas.

Please be aware of the risk of further disruption, particularly to transport.
